

Hello to all my friends and supporters! February 2011

The 2011 racing season promises to be action packed, so I've decided to keep people informed through a monthly newsletter. I'll be providing updates on my racing progress and special events throughout the year. I hope you enjoy coming with me on this amazing journey!

During the off season I traveled to Sacramento several times for classroom training with my Ron Sutton's Winners Circle (RSWC) teammates. I've also been working on improving my core fitness thanks to the generosity of Total Woman Gym and Spa.

This year I'm fortunate to be racing two different cars for two different teams. My primary series will be the S2 NASCAR with High Point Racing. I'm eager to drive a full-bodied stock car on a half mile track. I'll also continue with another season in the USAC Ford Focus Midget with Winners Circle Racing. That means I'll be in about 30 races between March and November. I'm excited!

The USAC Focus Midget Kick off at Blythe on March 5th !

Known for being among the most difficult tracks to navigate, I made the trek out to Blythe a couple times in February to practice. Everything I heard about the track turned out to be true – it's a tough one! The good news is that by my second visit, I gained a lot of confidence and drove the car to its limits. That means the car was on the edge of breaking loose and spinning out– but didn't! Right when I drove my fastest lap of the night, it started raining. By the time I drove the car back to the pits it was pouring. My dad and I loaded everything in the trailer in record time and headed home with smiles.

The S2 NASCAR season opens in April, so I'll spend the month of March getting comfortable with the car on the half mile track at Toyota Speedway at Irwindale. I'll keep you updated on my progress in the following newsletters! To check out my 2011 schedule, go to the following link:
